

The U.S. Postal Service is now requiring state agencies in Juneau to use a P.O. Box in their mailing address.

For the Department of Education & Early Development in Juneau, these changes apply to the central offices in the Goldbelt building, the State Archives on Willoughby Avenue, and the Alaska Commission on Post-Secondary Education. The exception is the Alaska State Museum, which does not need a P.O. Box.

The new mailing addresses are as follows.
